

Framing Pediatric Obesity Prevention

The presentation will provide an overview of diet and physical activity outcomes in individual, family, community, and population health pediatric obesity prevention interventions. A scoping review of these interventions will be discussed within the National Institute on Minority Health and Disparities and Life Course science frameworks and will include "what does this mean to me as a practitioner" recommendations.