

ELI NEIBURGER ON THE DIGITAL FUTURE OF PUBLIC LIBRARIES

The Missing Link: Connecting the Analog Past with the Digital Future of the Public Library

Deputing Director of the Ann Arbor District Library Eli Neiburger will discuss how information has become decoupled from place, and how nobody is feeling the impact more than the Public Library, the place that is all about information. Rapidly shifting demand and unstable political funding have left America's most widely-beloved government institutions tearing on the precipice... or at least that's the popular perception. In fact, most libraries are busier than ever, and adapting rapidly to demand changes that aren't as abrupt or destabilizing as they might seem.

Find out how one Public Library in a book-crazy town is thriving amongst the shifting challenges of information delivery, while growing its audience, retaining its independence, and keeping the innate value of Public Library front and center.
