

Story Explorers

Here are the activities we did today and why we did them:

Fine motor skills development—Planting a seed

Gross motor skills development—bean bag toss, scrubbing vegetables

Comprehension—retelling the story, asking questions about the book, “picking” carrots and preparing our own food

Developing self-control—taking turns, sitting still and listening to the story, transitioning from one activity to the next

Learning new words-defining unfamiliar words, naming vegetables, talking about the story

Developing a love of books and reading-I try to make our time together as enjoyable as possible so that the children have a fun experience with the book and think of the library as a positive place to be.
