

In the Beginning

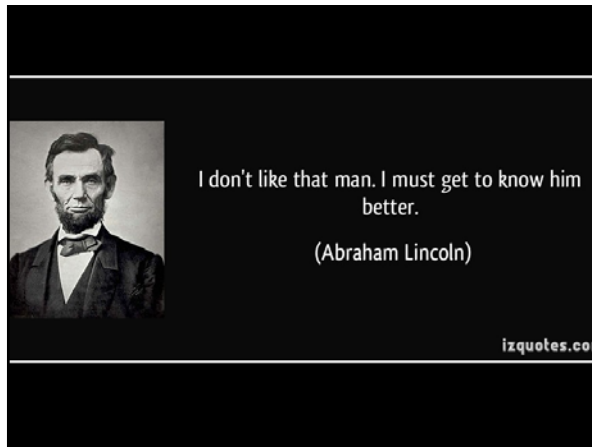

- Multiple transports/no time
- Sick kittens vs. healthy
- Easier to kill them/blame game
- No-kill vs. Kill
- Culture/staff morale
- Large foster program/limited resources

A small photograph of two kittens, one grey and white, and one brown and white, huddled together and sleeping.The logo for the cat adoption team, featuring the word "cat" with a yellow cat head as the letter 'a', and "cat adoption team" below it, all on a white background with a green wavy border at the bottom.

In the Beginning – Not So Pretty

A collection of green toy soldiers in various poses, some holding rifles, arranged on a white background.The logo for the cat adoption team, featuring the word "cat" with a yellow cat head as the letter 'a', and "cat adoption team" below it, all on a white background with a green wavy border at the bottom.

Ingredients for Success

1. Put aside your differences, and work on the facts. Ask, "How can we help you?" and mean it.

Ingredients for Success

1. Put aside your differences, and work on the facts. Ask, "How can we help you?" and mean it.
2. Don't try to change each other's shelter.

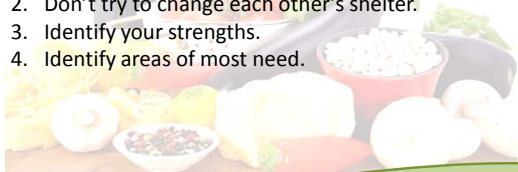

Ingredients for Success

1. Put aside your differences, and work on the facts. Ask, "How can we help you?" and mean it.
2. Don't try to change each other's shelter.
3. Identify your strengths.

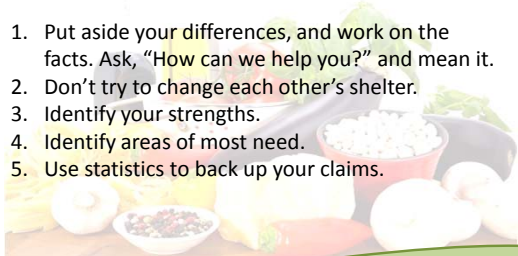

Ingredients for Success

1. Put aside your differences, and work on the facts. Ask, "How can we help you?" and mean it.
2. Don't try to change each other's shelter.
3. Identify your strengths.
4. Identify areas of most need.

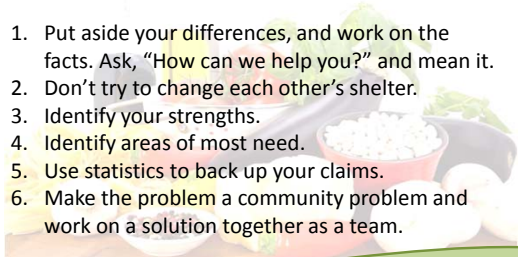

Ingredients for Success

1. Put aside your differences, and work on the facts. Ask, "How can we help you?" and mean it.
2. Don't try to change each other's shelter.
3. Identify your strengths.
4. Identify areas of most need.
5. Use statistics to back up your claims.

Ingredients for Success

1. Put aside your differences, and work on the facts. Ask, "How can we help you?" and mean it.
2. Don't try to change each other's shelter.
3. Identify your strengths.
4. Identify areas of most need.
5. Use statistics to back up your claims.
6. Make the problem a community problem and work on a solution together as a team.

Ingredients for Success

1. Put aside your differences, and work on the facts. Ask, "How can we help you?" and mean it.
2. Don't try to change each other's shelter.
3. Identify your strengths.
4. Identify areas of most need.
5. Use statistics to back up your claims.
6. Make the problem a community problem and work on a solution together as a team.
7. Include outside resources that are helpful.

Coming together is a beginning,
staying together is progress,
and working together is success.

Henry Ford

Thank you!

Kristi Brooks
Director of Operations
Cat Adoption Team
kristib@catadoptionteam.org
(503) 925-8903 x227
www.catadoptionteam.org