To the Editor:

The legislature can ban guns and ammunition, but it can't ban evil. Someone bent on doing evil will never be deterred because one particular type of tool is unavailable. That is one of the great fallacies of gun control. Another fallacy is the belief that criminals and madmen will even follow the laws that are passed. They won't. The only ones affected by gun control laws are the law abiding citizens who follow them, who are left at the mercy of the criminals and madmen who don't.

Sincerely,
