

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

July 12, 2017

email@mortonmediatv.com

240.463.6915

INFORMATION TECHNOLOGY GIANT BDPA
HONORS 2017 *PACE*Setters

(LARGO, MD) – The National BDPA Awards Program Committee will honor three of America’s top and talented individuals from international banking and financial services corporation Wells Fargo with *PACE*Setter Awards at their 39th Annual National Technology Conference at the Duke Energy Convention Center in Cincinnati, Ohio on July 26-29th. The award will be presented for distinction in Career Achievement, Community Service and Technology Excellence.

Each year, National BDPA solicits nominations from the information technology industry for individuals who personify and “set the pace” for results achieved, impact, and recognition in the aforementioned categories.

Theresa Wilson, Chief Technology Operating Officer at Wells Fargo, received top recognition in Career Achievement as an experienced professional who achieved significant professional accomplishments and made contributions throughout her career. Gary Simms, Strategy Consultant at Wells Fargo, received the Community Service award for significant demonstration by meaningful results, strong partnership, and collaboration with entities in the community in which he resides. And Tiffany Jenkins, Business Initiatives Consultant at Wells Fargo, received the Technology Excellence award for pioneering new or leveraging existing technology to solve a critical industry, business or technical problem.

Individual *PACE*Setter award winners received a commemorative plaque, a complimentary one-year BDPA membership, and featured recognition among their peers as a BDPA Individual *PACE*Setter Award winner on the bdpa.org website.

For more details on the BDPA corporate sponsorship program or the National Technology Conference, contact the corporate sales support team at (301) 584-3135 ext. 108 or corpsales@bdpa.org. Additionally, please visit www.bpdpa.org

