Steve Budsberg DVM, BS, MS, DACVS received his DVM from Washington State University in 1983. He completed an internship at Angel Memorial in Boston and then did his residency in Small Animal Surgery at Michigan State University, in 1987. Subsequently, he received his board-certification from the American College of Veterinary Surgery. Dr. Budsberg spent time at Louisiana State University before joining the faculty at University of Georgia. Currently, Dr. Budsberg is a professor in the Department of Small Animal Medicine and Surgery and is also jointly appointed to the Department of Physiology and Pharmacology. Dr. Budsberg's research interests are in orthopedics, gait analysis, and pain management. He has been a featured speaker at over 500 events including 90 international events. Dr. Budsberg has published several book chapters and over 200 Abstracts and Articles. He has served the veterinary community in several capacities including President of the American College of Veterinary Surgeons and President of the Evidence-Based Veterinary Medicine Association and Chairman of Research Council of the American Veterinary Medical Association, and Board of Directors of the Veterinary Orthopedic Society. He has been the recipient of many honors and awards including: the Distinguished Alumnus Award from Washington State University CVM, the AVMA Fido Research Award in 2004, Josiah Meigs Distinguished Teaching Professor, Distinguished Postdoctoral Veterinary Alumnus Award, and the Pfizer Animal Health award for Research Excellence.

Paul Bloom, DVM, DACVD and DABVP Canine and Feline Specialty obtained his DVM with high honors from Michigan State University in 1976 and has worked in small animal medicine ever since. He obtained board certification in the American board of veterinary practitioners in 1984 and became Michigan's FIRST board-certified veterinary dermatologist in full-time private practice in 2001 when he became a diplomate of the American College of Veterinary Dermatology. In 2016, he became a certified Fear Free practitioner. Dr. Bloom also serves as adjunct faculty at the MSU veterinary college. Some veterinary students spend their dermatology rotation at the Allergy, Skin and Ear Clinic for Pets, and he regularly visits the campus to work and interact with students and staff. He has lectured at numerous state, national and international conferences and has written many book chapters. Dr. Bloom serves on the scientific program committee for the ACVD and is a reviewer for the professional journals Veterinary Dermatology, the Veterinary Journal, Irish Veterinary Journal, Journal of Small Animal Practice, Journal of the AVMA and the Journal of Veterinary Emergency and Critical Care. When he's not working, Dr. Bloom spends his time playing hockey or relaxing at home in rural Northfield Township, Michigan with his wife and "menagerie" of animals which currently includes; 3 horses, 2 mini-donkeys, 1 goat, 2 sheep, 4 cats, and 1 dog.

We hope you have enjoyed the conference and found the information useful. If you have any suggestions for future meetings including topics or speakers, please contact Noel Thomas DVM.
