

NINE MONTHS POST-INAUGURATION: MOVING BEYOND RESISTANCE
CREATING AN ACTION PLAN FOR GENDER JUSTICE
IN THE NEW POLITICAL REALITY

UNIVERSITY OF THE
DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA
DAVID A. CLARKE SCHOOL OF LAW

It has been nine months since the Inauguration. A new movement has been born, based largely on resistance. Resistance is powerful, and it has slowed down the progress of the Republican agenda. Yet resistance alone cannot take us where we want to go. For this movement to grow and flourish, we need a positive agenda, an action plan to move forward with progressive goals and ideas.

The purpose of this conference is to call together activists, policy makers, lawyers, and law students to envision the next stage of the new movement for global gender justice.

Conference themes and topics will include:

- Intersectionality and representative leadership. Centering women of color, lesbian and transgender women, religious minorities, immigrants, women living in poverty, and women living with disabilities in the conversation.
- GET* Lightning Rounds. Examine the most pressing challenges of the new Administration, including the assault on immigrants, Muslims, working women, health care, and the LGBTQ community. (*Gender Equity Talks)
- GET Huddles. Join with our speakers and like-minded people to explore opportunities for progressive change through law, policy, and activism.
- Speed Networking. Learn about opportunities for activism and advocacy from local and national organizations.
- Action Spotlights. Tools of progressive change, including story-telling and media strategies, political participation and running for office, and innovative legal services.

CALLING ALL ACTIVISTS AND ADVOCACY GROUPS

Do you have a policy agenda or action strategy to share? Are you looking for volunteers, signatures on your petition, or activists to get involved in your cause? Reserve your space at our Speed Networking hour, where you will have an opportunity to give a 3-minute elevator pitch and recruit people to your cause. Participation is free but you must register in advance.
