Assisting Agribusiness Clients with Financing Challenges; Immigration Issues Facing Agribusinesses

Fred Bruning - Bruning State Bank; Dick Zach - Farm Credit Services of America; Clete Samson - Kutak Rock

Attorneys are frequently asked to assist their agribusiness clients with legal issues arising from financing challenges during difficult economic times. This panel will address those challenges, how attorneys can best assist their clients when attempting to work out financing issues for their clients, and how having an estate plan in place that the banker can rely upon when making financing decisions can assist agribusiness clients. Additionally, Clete Samson will discuss immigration law as it pertains to agriculture, including the recent efforts by the Federal Government to step up enforcement of Federal immigration laws and how such efforts may impact agriculture.

Vision Correction: Examining Eyewitness Identifications Through the Lens of LB1000 and the Exoneration of Richard Jones

Richard Jones - Missouri exoneree; Joe Howard - Dornan Troia; Mark Sundermeier - Omaha Police Dept.

Eyewitness misidentification is the number one cause of wrongful convictions. Neb. Rev. Stat. §81-1455, passed in 2016, was created to minimize misidentifications by encouraging law enforcement to engage in evidence-based lineup practices. Join us as we discuss the statute and the release of Richard Jones, who was recently exonerated after spending 17 years in prison for a crime he did not commit due to an eyewitness misidentification. Jones will discuss his experience of being wrongfully convicted based on eyewitness misidentification and Deputy Chief Sundermeier will talk about the implications of the statute, using Jones' case as an example, from a law enforcement perspective.

Ethics Seminar with Roy Ginsburg

Retain Your Clients:

A Roadmap to Effective, Ethical Client Service

Roy Ginsburg - Nationally-Renowned Lawyer Coach and Attorney

Many lawyers forget that law is a service profession. Studies show that the most common reason for losing clients is poor service, and retaining clients in a volatile economy is crucial to your practice. So how do you make sure you're providing the best service? This seminar will provide you with the tools you'll need to consistently deliver exceptional service, retain and develop more business from current clients, and increase referrals. You'll also earn ethics credit while you learn to apply best practices that will exceed client expectations; eliminate the most common causes of client dissatisfaction; deal effectively with all types of client complaints; handle angry clients; and much more. Classic movie scenes illustrate and underscore the program's principles to help you gain a competitive edge through excellent service.

General Session
Chief Standing Bear’s Long Journey for Justice

Prof. Joe Starita - University of Nebraska

Late on the evening of May 2, 1879, in a building at the corner of 15th and Dodge in Omaha, a large, boisterous crowd saw something that no one had ever seen in the nation’s 103-year history: They saw an aging man clad in a red blanket, buckskin leggings and bear-claw necklace rise from the plaintiff’s table and slowly make his way to the front of the noisy courtroom.

Earlier that year, Ponca Chief Standing Bear had walked almost 500 miles to honor a death bed promise to his only son. But two days short of their ancestral burial ground, the chief and his small party were arrested by the U.S. Army and marched to Fort Omaha. A few weeks later, on behalf of his weak, diseased and starving people, Standing Bear sued a brigadier general of the U.S. Army. He demanded to know whether the Constitution offered protection to those who looked like him. He challenged an all-powerful government to prove it could not legally stop him from burying the remains of his son in the soil of their native homeland.

Now, in the crowded courtroom, he stopped in front of the judge’s bench and extended his right arm, holding it aloft until there was complete silence. Then he turned and faced the curious crowd. “My hand is not the color of yours,” he said, “but if I pierce it, I shall feel pain. If you pierce your hand, you also feel pain. The blood that will flow from mine will be of the same color as yours. I am a man. The same God made us both.”

A few days later, a federal judge did something that also was a first in American history: He declared that an Indian “is a person within the meaning of the law” with the “same inalienable right to life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness as the more fortunate white race.”

Award-winning investigative reporter Joe Starita, in his book “I Am a Man”: Chief Standing Bear’s Journey for Justice, explores the powerful, compelling story that reached its climax in Omaha 130 years ago. It is a story of survival. It is a story of life and death, despair and fortitude, freedom and patriotism. And it is a story of hope. But before it ends, Standing Bear’s story also explores fundamental issues of citizenship, constitutional protection, cultural identity and the nature of democracy – issues that still resonate in 21st century America. And it is a story that aptly illustrates how the nation’s delicate system of checks and balances worked almost exactly the way the Founding Fathers envisioned.
