

Final Program

Two symbols of Weimar

Goethe & Schiller, the literary geniuses of Weimar...

... standing in front of the "German National Theater" in Weimar, where both, Johann Wolfgang Goethe and Friedrich Schiller, worked together from 1799 to 1805.

SALVE

"SALVE" stands on the threshold of Goethes Wohnhaus...

... meaning "May things go well with you" – a greeting offered by Weimar its residents and guests alike.

Chronology: Annual International SPR Conferences .....	62
SPR 2003 .....	63

On behalf of the Program Council, I welcome you to this year's international conference. We have an exciting and busy programme.

There is an excellent and diverse range of presentations. Colleagues from 24 countries have submitted around 350 presentations. Sadly, worries about Sars and travel have led some colleagues to withdraw their presentations.

The Conference begins on Wednesday June 25. Pre-conference workshops allowing you to work on a topic in depth are scheduled for the afternoon. There will be a welcome reception in the evening. The following morning, we start with the Presidential address given by Karla Moras. The Conference ends at 1.15 pm on Sunday. For the most part, sessions are being held in the Congress Centre, a most attractive, contemporary building, centrally-located in Weimar. Some sessions are located in the nearby Russischer Hof, a splendid baroque hotel.

Each day, there are collective and break out sessions. The volume of submissions means that there has to be up to ten parallel panel and paper sessions but this is balanced by daily plenaries when we can come together. The plenaries will give overviews in neuroscience, and what we know about efficacy, effectiveness and good design and about group therapy. For the "what we know" sessions, we are able to draw on the expertise of SPR members who have written chapters for the forthcoming, new edition of the Handbook of Psychotherapy and Behavior Change. The final plenary will consider collaborative research; everyone will have the opportunity to put their ideas forward for possible future studies.

We have a new numbering system for this year. Each session has a seven digit number e.g. 3-7-04. The first digit identifies the day i.e. Friday, the first group of two numbers the time-slot i.e. the seventh slot (15:50-17:00), and the last group of two numbers that this is the fourth in a group of parallel sessions.

Presentations have been grouped into tracks. Should you wish, you will be able to follow interests in case formulation, CBT, cultural perspectives, culture and spirituality, measures, metapsychology, multiperson therapy, neuroscience, new directions, outcome, process, psychosomatics, quality management, training and development, and trauma. With a few exceptions, each track is unopposed.

Presenters and moderators have been asked to keep to time. Interested, informed discussion is the life-blood of SPR. You can expect that at least one third of the time in all sessions will be reserved for discussion.

On the Saturday, there are several demonstration workshops and a research consultation workshop. The latter is an innovation for SPR; participants will get expert advice for their project on research design, implementation or analysis. The audience's contribution is also welcome.

On both the Thursday and Friday, there are substantial poster sessions, a third of which will be previewed.

We hope that the establishment of special interest groups, begun in Chicago in 2001, will continue apace. Time has been reserved for special interest groups to convene on the Saturday (15:30 to 17:30). There is a scheduled session for Young Scholars to meet on the Friday evening (18:45 to 19:30). Remember that these groupings can be represented on the Program Council and help deliver the conference that reflects your interests and needs.

Everyone with an interest in the Journal and wanting to meet the editors are invited to the Journal Reception sponsored by our publishers, Oxford University Press, on Friday (18:45 to 20:00).

All participants are entitled to attend the business lunches on the Thursday, Friday and Saturday. Only SPR members can vote.

New members of SPR attending their first international conference are invited to the reception on the Thursday (18:45 to 20:00).

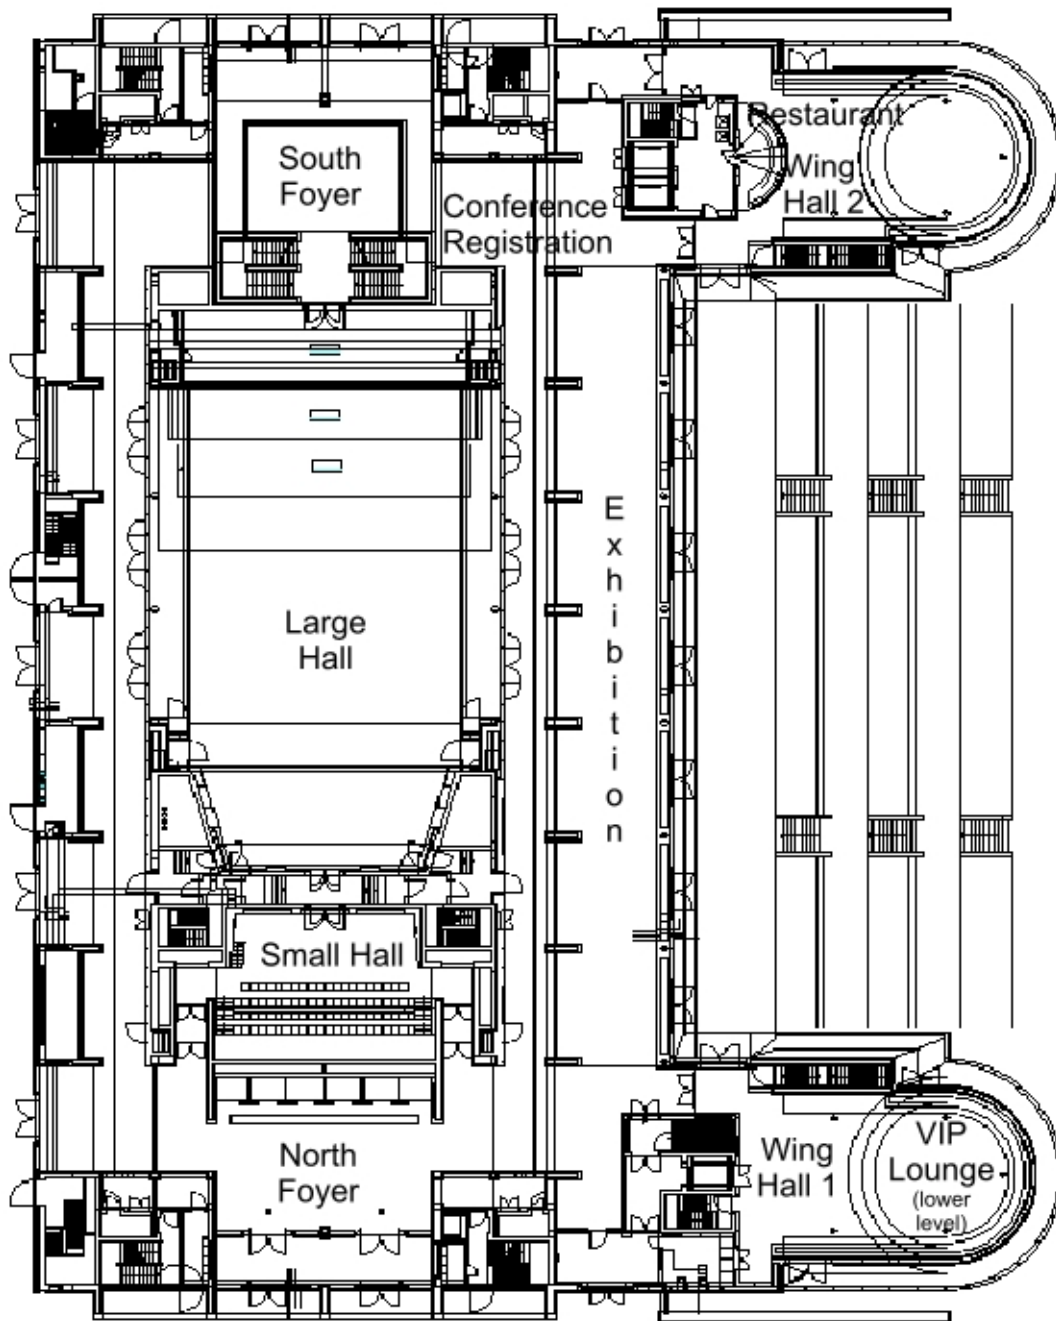

SPR has a well-deserved reputation for friendliness. Everyone can talk to everyone. Please look out for new members and give them a special welcome.

Please notify any alterations in presentations to the Program Chair. Address administrative and audio-visual queries to the conference manager and his team.

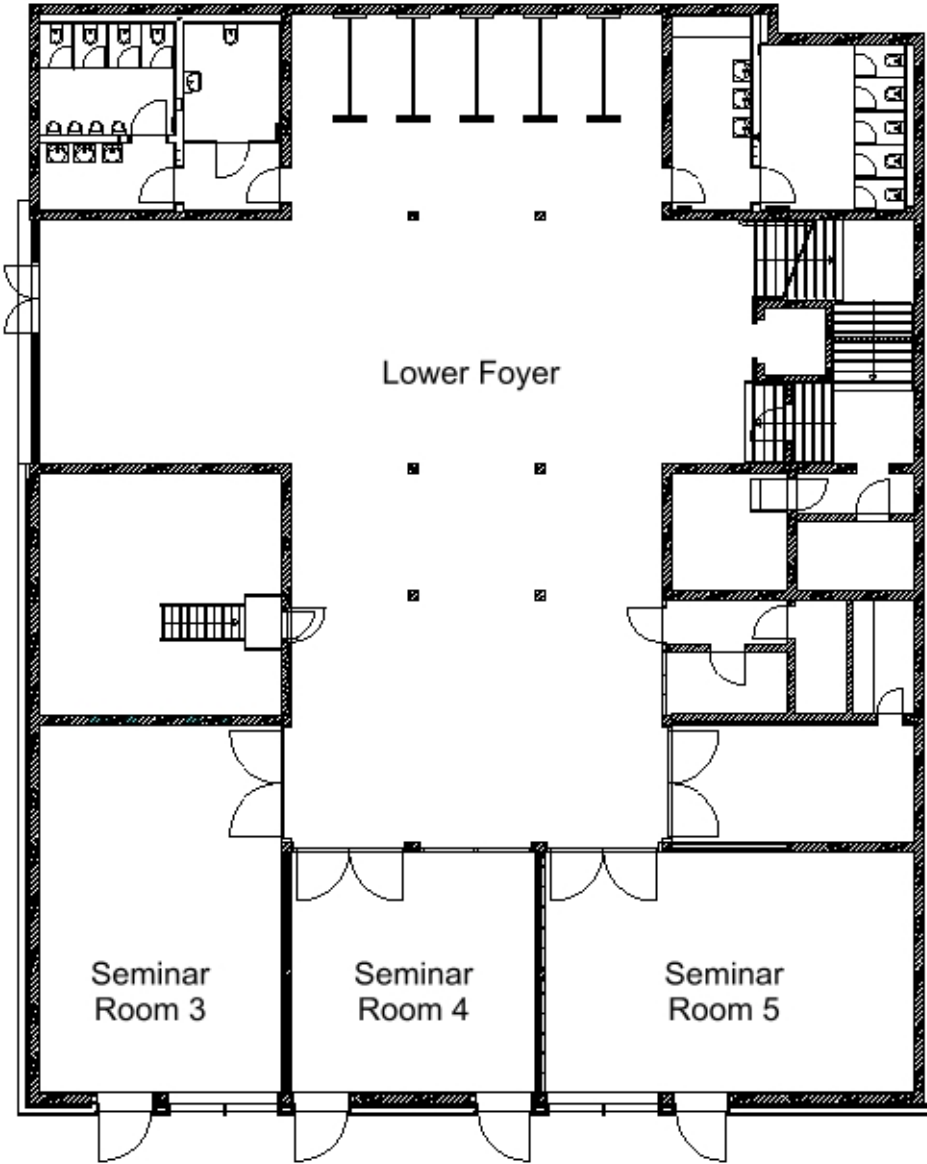

We look to meeting you in Weimar and getting feedback on the conference.
