VCU Health & Massey Cancer Center welcome

Kandace P. McGuire, MD Chief of Breast Surgery

Kandace P. McGuire, MD, has been appointed chief of breast surgery and surgical leader of the Breast Health Program at Virginia Commonwealth University (VCU) Massey Cancer Center. She joined VCU Massey Cancer Center in September 2017 from the Lineberger Comprehensive Cancer Center at the University of North Carolina, where she was the surgical director of the Multidisciplinary Breast Cancer Program. Previously, she served in various roles related to breast surgery at the University of Pittsburgh Magee Womens Hospital.

In addition to providing patient care, Dr. McGuire conducts research, leading clinical trials to improve patient outcomes. Her research focuses on how to minimize breast cancer intervention, non-operatively manage ductal carcinoma in situ (DCIS) and decrease age-related, racial, ethnic and socioeconomic disparities in the detection, treatment and survivorship of breast cancer. She has published more than three dozen scientific papers in peer reviewed journals and a handful of book chapters. She has presented her research and been invited to lecture at more than 80 professional and academic conferences, including the Society of Surgical Oncology's 70th Annual Cancer Symposium.

Dr. McGuire is the recipient of numerous awards and honors, serves on several national committees and is a member of many professional associations. She is also actively involved in teaching and mentoring.

Originally from Connecticut, McGuire met her husband at the University of Richmond when they were both undergraduate students. They were married on the campus prior to moving out of state. They are both very excited to be returning to the Richmond area.

Dr. McGuire sees patients at the Dalton Oncology Clinic (downtown Richmond) and at Stony Point 9000 located in VCU Health's Stony Point Campus.
