Webinar References from Timing Considerations for Evidence Collection by Pamela Marshall, MS

1. Persistence of spermatozoa in the vagina and cervix, A. Morrison, British Journal Venereal Disease, (1972), 48, 141
2. Fluorescent identification of biological and other stains on skin by the use of alternative light sources, J. Wawryk, et.al, Journal of Clinical Forensic Medicine, (2005), 12, 296-301
3. DNA Identification of Biological Traces and Interpretation in a Sexual Assault Case, A. Apostolov, et.al, American Journal of Forensic Medicine and Pathology, (2009), 30(1), 57-60
12. Novel Y-STR typing strategies reveal the genetic profile of the semen donor in extended interval post-coital cervicovaginal
13. The collection of data from findings in cases of sexual assault and the significance of spermatozoa on vaginal, anal and oral swabs, J.E. Allard, Science and Justice, (1997), 37(2), 99-108

