International Academy of Design and Technology Earns Honors for Student Services from Florida Association of Postsecondary Schools and Colleges

TAMPA, FL – Sept 16, 2013 – The International Academy of Design and Technology (IADT) in Tampa has received top honors for student services from the Florida Association of Postsecondary Schools and Colleges (FAPSC), a statewide organization representing private career schools.

Kamil Francois from IADT took home the 2013 Gail Benjamin Student Service Administrator of the Year Award, which was presented at the FAPSC Annual Conference held recently in South Florida. The award honors the legacy of Gail Benjamin, who began her career working with high school students who aspired to advance their learning. From admissions representative, she rose to become vice president for a group of more than 130 schools.

“Kamil is a leader in her field, demonstrating high levels of critical thinking, mixed with a sense of humor that makes everyone she works with feel valued, and students feel comfortable,” said Curtis Austin, executive director of FAPSC.

FAPSC has been the voice of Florida’s career schools since 1956. The association of more than 250 members works on behalf of the more than 1,000 licensed private career schools and colleges in Florida that prepare 400,000 students each year for employment in more than 200 occupational fields by offering degree programs, certification and training.

The International Academy of Design & Technology offers students a hands-on education to pursue careers in design, technology, media arts and business fields.
