

Membership FAQ

What types of memberships are available?

ICAC offers two different memberships: regular members and associate members.

Regular members: any person, firm, corporation, subsidiary or division of a corporation engaged, through sales, manufacturing or processing activities, in the design and/or supply of air pollution control systems, equipment, or processes

Associate members: any contractor, supplier of equipment components, reagents or repair services or consultants to the air pollution control industry shall be eligible for Associate membership. Associate members shall not hold office or be entitled to vote except as may be specifically authorized herein.

How much does membership cost?

Each ICAC member company is requested to self-categorize their membership dues level at the end of the prior calendar year. The dues categories are considered commitments that are then used in the aggregate to support the ICAC budget in its following fiscal year. The ICAC fiscal year runs from July 1 through June 30.

How are membership dues decided?

Membership dues are tiered based on the member companies' projected annual air pollution control sales revenue.
