Carol M. Adinamis advances as president-elect of Indiana State Bar Association

INDIANAPOLIS (Oct. 23, 2014) – Carol M. Adinamis, Westfield, advanced to the office of president-elect of the Indiana State Bar Association (ISBA) for 2014-15 at the Association’s annual meeting in Indianapolis on Friday, Oct. 10. Her term will expire in October 2015, after which she will become president of the ISBA. As president, she will represent the single largest legal organization in the state.

Adinamis is a partner at the firm Adinamis & Saunders PC, where she focuses on business formation and planning, estate planning, mediation and taxation. Previously, Carol served as a CPA at Arthur Andersen. She received her B.S. in accounting from Indiana University-Bloomington in 1987 and her J.D. from the I.U. Maurer School of Law in 1992. Carol is a member of the Indianapolis, Hamilton County, Indiana State (member, Board of Governors; chair, House of Delegates; chair, Legal Ethics Committee) and American bar associations, Indiana CPA Society and the American Institute of CPA’s. She is also an active member of the Brebeuf Jesuit Mothers Association and Oak Trace Elementary PTO.
