

1989 ITAA Fellow – Marjory Joseph

Marjory L. Joseph, formerly Professor of Home Economics, California State University, Northridge, passed away in 1988. At that time she was the editor and a motivating force behind the Clothing and Textiles Research Journal and served as a past ACPTC president. A certified textile chemist, Dr. Joseph was a consultant to various firms in the development of visual aids concerning the manufacturing process and legal issues surrounding textile fibers and fabrics. The textbooks she authored and co-authored have provided an educational foundation for untold numbers of students. She will be remembered as a fine teacher, administrator, colleague, and friend by those in ACOTC and in the larger field of home economics.
