AWARD
MASTER LIST
1971 - 2008

MARK TWAIN AWARD

A Brief History

It was when Marcie Neal was President of the Missouri Library Association that she planned and initiated the award for a book to be chosen by the children of Missouri. It was named THE MARK TWAIN AWARD in honor of the Missouri author who is our best known contributor to world literature.

The Missouri Library Association and the Missouri Association of School Librarians presented the first reading list to children of Missouri for the 1971-72 school year. Children from 4th through 8th grade who read or had read to them at least 4 (four) of these books were eligible to vote. SOUNDER, by William H. Armstrong, was the winning book when 16,559 children voted in the spring of 1972. Mr. Armstrong was presented the award during the MASS Spring Conference in 1973. The Missouri Association of School Librarians sponsor the award.

The purpose of the award is to stimulate reading and to encourage our children to read some of the best new books for young people. If numbers are any indication, the purpose is being accomplished. Each year the number of children voting has increased. In 1990, almost 90,000 children participated. The award has grown in stature and has become recognized on the national level.
