

Personal Bio – JAMES DINSCH

James Dinsch serves as the Department Chair for the Emergency Medical Services Department and Program Director for the EMS Academy at Indian River State College in Fort Pierce, Florida. He holds a BS in Public Safety Administration, a MS in Disaster Preparedness and Crisis Management, and is pursuing a PhD in Cognitive and Instructional Psychology. He holds multiple EMS and fire instructor certifications, is trained as a tactical medic, and is licensed to practice as a paramedic in eight states. Dinsch has had a diverse emergency services career spanning over 25 years with positions from entry-level ambulance EMT to flight medic to a fire-rescue chief officer, including over 20 years of concurrent EMS education experience.