Requests for Edits to this Preliminary Program

The information in this document was pulled directly from the abstract submission system. The abstracts were submitted by authors or those working on behalf of the authors of the abstract. If you discover spelling errors that we haven’t found, please let us know! This document will be updated on a weekly basis and as we get closer to the conference almost daily. Send an email to ddodd@acsp.org referencing the abstract ID of the paper and we will gladly:

- Correct, add or remove author names.
- Amend titles - The research must remain that which was submitted, reviewed and accepted, but we’re glad to make updates to the paper title.
- Update email addresses – many of us have more than one! ACSP prefers to include your university email address, but will include your preference.
- Correct weird looking characters! In some cases, the translation of text using copy/paste into the abstract system may not have been completely successful.
- Items in red text – not yet confirmed, and in some cases, require reconfirmation.

Requests for Rescheduling of Your Presentation

The conference committee and association staff will schedule an anticipated 200-215 sessions for approximately 850 faculty and student presenters in 12-14 time slots over four days with only 14-15 meeting rooms to work with. ACSP Committee Meetings, journal meetings, and other special sessions must also be included in the schedule. We appreciate your understanding of just how difficult it is to make any changes to the schedule once all participants have been notified.

* A green asterisk next to the paper title indicates a full paper is completed and submitted to conference organizers.
and the schedule is posted to the web. Presenters unable to present at the scheduled time must notify the conference management office in writing and withdraw from the program. Your presentation schedule cannot be rearranged.

Abstract ID #

When submitted to the abstract management system, each abstract is assigned an abstract submission ID number for administrative search/find purposes. This is the number that authors should reference to staff with any questions regarding their abstract, their presentation, or their final paper submission.

Order of Authors

The abstract management system used by ACSP allows for author role declaration.

- For paper and poster abstracts - Authors of abstracts are indicated as presenting, primary, or co-authors. The presenting author is always listed first, typically followed by the primary author. No more than eight authors for one paper are included.
- Roundtables will have an organizer and a moderator. The remaining names listed are confirmed participants of the discussion while anyone in the audience can participate in the discussion. There can be a total of eight names listed for each roundtable.
- Pre-organized sessions will also have an organizer and some at this point will have a suggested discussant. This suggested discussant has yet to be confirmed and their participation will be verified prior to the schedule of presentations being created.

Policy for Presenter’s Registration for the Conference

Deadline September 18

A historical policy is enforced – All presenting authors, roundtable participants, and discussants must register by the presenter’s registration deadline of September 18. If you don’t make this deadline, we expect you are unable to attend the conference and so will remove your presentation from the schedule.

Multiple Program Placement Policy

Multiple abstract submissions on behalf of one author will be reviewed and may possibly be accepted. However, more than one presentation of a paper and more than one appearance as a roundtable participant during the conference will not be allowed. It is, however, possible to present both a poster and a paper if both proposals are accepted. Participants on the final program will be limited to: one presentation of an individual paper whether in a formed paper session, lightning session, or involved in a pre-organized paper session; one placement on a roundtable; one placement as a discussant of a paper session; and one placement in the poster session. These roles are not interchangeable. If you have more than one submitted paper accepted and are invited to participate on more than one roundtable, in fairness to everyone, we will ask you to limit your participation.
Audio Visual Equipment Available for On-Site Presenters

Pre-Set Equipment
- Podium - no microphone
- Data projector and screen set in every presentation room.

Equipment Assistance
Presentation rooms are staffed by student volunteers, but these volunteers are not trained on the use of the equipment. The audio visual company providing the projectors will have limited staff on site to assist with technical difficulty and will be working in more than a dozen different presentation rooms. In other words, we strongly recommend making yourself comfortable with these types of projectors before your arrival. Most of them are standard and simple in operating procedures. The student volunteer will have a radio to call for assistance if necessary.

Laptop Protocol and Cables for your Laptop
- Laptops are NOT provided, nor does the staff have any available to "borrow just for an hour." If you don't have one, be prepared to borrow one from a friend. If you don't have any friends, we will be glad to introduce to people
- Cables for your laptop – the audio visual company will have a limited supply of cables you may borrow. Please remember to bring your own cables.
- Mac Users - bring the Dongle adapter to plug into a PC port on the data projector.

Final Paper Submission x 3 by October 2

1) Submit Your Final Paper to Your Session Discussant

- The name and the email address of your discussant can be found by reviewing the session schedule posted to www.acsp.org in early August and continually updated throughout September.
- If your discussant is not yet confirmed at the time of the deadline, the conference management office will advise you as soon as the discussant is confirmed and we will ask that you email your paper immediately to the discussant.
- Some paper sessions are planned to be without a discussant.
- If you do not send your final paper by the deadline, the discussant has the option of making no comments about your work.

2) Submit Your Final Paper to Other Presenters in Your Session

- We strongly encourage you to send your final paper to the other presenters in your session, especially if there is not a discussant confirmed.
- Presenter email addresses can be found in the posted conference schedule. This will enhance and hopefully stimulate discussion after all presentations are made.
3) Submit Your Final Paper to Conference Organizers - finalpapers@acsp.org - This request of annual conference organizers is in response to considerable concern expressed in recent years about papers being finished extremely late or not at all and presentations lacking because of it. Paper sessions are much stronger when they are supported by full papers.

- Submitting your final paper in advance to the conference organizers will help ensure sessions are successful.
- The 2017 print program and conference app will indicate that your final paper is available to conference attendees upon request.
- Remember! Sending the final paper to finalpapers@acsp.org does not get your paper to your discussant. Send it separately to the discussant.
- Please submit your final conference paper using the form below NO LATER THAN 5 P.M. EST ON October 2. Use the email address: finalpapers@acsp.org
- Title the paper: Abstract #: _ _ _ /Presenting Author's Last Name. The Abstract # for every paper can be found in the conference schedule and in the conference app schedule.
- PowerPoint presentation files are not considered final papers. If you are unable to make the October 2 deadline, please do finish your paper in advance of the conference. You can of course still present that paper if a final edited version isn’t finished. It just won't be noted in the conference program as having been finished prior to October 2. We suggest letting the audience in your session know the paper is available and they can use the conference app messaging system (or a direct email message to you) to ask for the paper.

Final Paper Format

Although there are no official guidelines on the format of your full paper, please submit your paper as an attachment to an email. Microsoft Word is probably the most widely used and readily accessible software format - we suggest you use this software and a very common font, or save your file as a PDF. We do recommend a 20-page limit as discussants only have as much time in their day as you do, and we ask them to pre-read 3-5 papers prior to the conference. Do not submit PowerPoint presentations. PowerPoint is only to be used for the actual presentation.

Many in the planning community utilize the American Psychological Association (APA) style for writing in the social and behavioral sciences. For more information or to obtain the APA Manual visit http://www.apastyle.org/.

ACSP does not publish a conference proceeding book and, therefore, ACSP does not publish style, spelling and usage guidelines. The ACSP Journal of Planning Education and Research (JPER) states in its "Guide for Authors" (on the inside of back cover) that is uses the Chicago Manual of Style. Please also refer to the JPER Guide for any citation questions.

Speaker Ready Booth in the Exhibit Hall

The Speaker Ready-Booth will have the same exact equipment available as in the presentation rooms. The booth is available on a first-come, first-serve basis so please be patient with your fellow presenters, but we also ask that in fairness to everyone, please limit your time when using the equipment.

A green asterisk next to the paper title indicates a full paper is completed and submitted to conference organizers.
• Computer station set with PowerPoint and Microsoft Word software, a CD R/W drive and flash drive for memory sticks. This computer is strictly for double checking your presentation. The ACSP does not provide data storage materials.
• An LCD projector to preview your presentation. Bring your own laptop to practice plugging in before your presentation.
Conference Highlights, Special Sessions and Training Workshops

Conference Highlights
Presidential Session: The State of Diversity within ACSP
Thursday: 4:15pm – 5:30pm
Room: Colorado B

With support from ACSP President Lois Takahashi, this session is hosted by the ACSP Committee on Diversity (CoD). CoD will present their 2016 Report on Race, Ethnicity, and Foreign Origin Data; describe activities undertaken to enhance ACSP’s commitment to inclusive and equitable diversity in education and research; and allow for discussion of their work on programs and incentives for increasing faculty and student diversity as well as expanding diversity in the curriculum.

Presenters from CoD

- Ann Forsyth, Harvard University, aforsyth@gsd.harvard.edu
- Arnab Chakraborty, University of Illinois at Urbana-Champaign, arnab@illinois.edu
- Jeffrey Lowe, Texas Southern University, lowejs@tsu.edu, Chair of the Committee

Conference Highlights/Training Workshop
Case Teaching & Writing for Planners: The Lincoln Institute of Land Policy
Friday: 1:30pm – 3:00pm
Room: Colorado I

To address the rising social, economic, and environmental challenges facing cities across the globe, planners need to acquire foundational knowledge and skills in planning and public finance as well as opportunities to apply them in real world situations. Thus the Lincoln Institute of Land Policy created a case library for teaching and learning. A case study re-creates a real-world problem, and asks students to walk in the shoes of public officials, business leaders, and citizens. Through debates, group work, and continuous feedback from educators and peers, participants develop a deep understanding of pertinent issues, analytical skills, and empathy for opposing views.

The workshop will introduce the Lincoln Institute Case Library initiative; strategies and supports for case research, writing, and teaching; ten ($1000) case study awards; and how you can use and contribute to the case library. Using two case study examples, we will review the definition of a teaching case, the learning goals and expected outcomes of using cases, and provide guidance on how to write them. During the last part of the workshop, participants will be invited to brainstorm cases they may be interested in writing. Prior to the workshop, participants will be asked to read two short cases that will be distributed in advance.

About the Speakers

Ge Vue is an Instructional Designer at the Lincoln Institute of Land Policy. He collaborates with content experts in planning and urban development, public finance, and valuation and taxation to develop residential and online professional learning programs. He is also leading the Institute’s effort to create a web-based, case study library for teaching and learning. The case library will provide educators and practitioners free access to teaching cases on a wide range of issues such as climate change, municipal fiscal health, value capture, property tax, and informality and urban poverty.

William Ellet teaches Management Communication at Brandeis University and at the University of Miami in its Executive MBA Program for Athletes and Artists. He facilitates Case Method Training Seminars for Harvard Business Publishing, primarily in Latin America, and independently as a consultant. He has been a writing consultant and coach for the HBS MBA Program for over 20 years. He is the author of The Case Study Handbook; cases; and an online course on management communication, all published by Harvard Business Publishing.

Conference Highlights/Training Workshop

Being Heard—and Agreed with—in the Policymaking Environment

Friday: 3:15pm – 4:45pm
Ticket required: $25
Room: Colorado H

Organized by the ACSP Executive Committee. From environmental regulations to infrastructure to social justice to community development, what happens in Washington, DC doesn’t stay there. Every day legislators and staff make decisions that dramatically impact the planning community. ACSP members can influence those decisions--we just need to know how! Join us in this interactive session to learn the four specific things you can do to ensure your legislators and their staff listen up and take notice. We’ll also go over what legislators are looking for from academic interests, the most important things to know about your legislators, and how to develop a winning message. Participants will come away with a specific plan for engaging effectively in the policymaking process. If you want to make a difference for communities across the country, this is the workshop for you.

About the Speaker

Stephanie D. Vance, also known as the “Advocacy Guru”, is the author of five books including Citizens in Action: A Guide to Influencing Government and the recently released The Influence Game. She’s a 25-year veteran of Washington, D.C. political scene and has held positions as a lobbyist, grassroots consultant and Congressional aide. Stephanie’s experiences as a legislative director and Chief of Staff on Capitol Hill led her to found Advocacy Associates, a firm dedicated to helping individuals and organizations be both heard and agreed with in the legislative environment. Ms. Vance holds a Master’s Degree in Legislative Affairs from George Washington University and a Master’s Degree in Liberal Studies at Georgetown University. She lives and works in Washington D.C.

Conference Highlights
Leaping the Hurdles & Navigating the Maze: Getting Funding from NIH & NSF
Friday: 3:15pm – 4:45pm
Room: Colorado I

Organized by the ACSP Executive Committee. This session is intended for faculty members, professionals, and graduate students interested in learning how to prepare successful proposals for research grants. Current and recently retired program officers from the National Science Foundation (NSF) and the National Institutes of Health (NIH) will highlight the hurdles commonly experienced by applicants and guide participants through the maze of NSF and NIH. They will discuss NSF’s and NIH’s review criteria and will also provide information on doctoral student support, early investigator funding opportunities, and faculty submission guidelines.

Moderator
TAKAHASHI, Lois [University of Southern California] lmtakah@usc.edu

Speakers
Susan Newcomer | susanfnnewcomer@gmail.com  Susan Newcomer retired to the high mountains of Colorado in May of 2017 after a 29 year stint as a health science administrator in the Population Dynamics Branch of the US National Institute of Child Health and Human Development. While there she managed about $34million of research grants on reproductive health, contraceptive use and domestic violence. She also provided advice on grant writing, the NIH review process, and appropriate “homes” for research to a wide range of potential applicants, both US and international. Before becoming a fed, she was the national director of education for PPFA. She has a 1983 Ph.D. in population studies from the University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill and a 1962 BA from Barnard College. She grew up in Cincinnati Ohio and has lived on both coasts and in Taiwan.

Antoinette WinklerPrins, | NSF | anwinkle@nsf.gov  Antoinette WinklerPrins, PhD, Program Director, Geography & Spatial Sciences Program Antoinette WinklerPrins is a people-environment geographer specializing in nature-society relations, with an emphasis on cultural landscapes and environmental knowledge systems, especially in the Brazilian Amazon. She received her B.A. in (urban) geography in 1983 from the University of Michigan and a Masters of Urban Planning (M.U.P.) with an emphasis on international development in 1985 from the same university. She completed a Ph.D. in geography from the University of Wisconsin-Madison in 1999, with a minor in soil science. She went on to complete a post-doc in soil science at ITC- Faculty of Geo-Information Science and Earth Observation (now part of the University of Twente) in The Netherlands. After her post-doc Antoinette spent ten years on the faculty of Michigan State University’s Department of Geography. At MSU she was also involved with the Environmental Science and Policy Program, the Latin American and Caribbean Studies Program, and the Centers for the Advanced Study of International Development and Gender in a Global Context. She then spent three years as a rotating Program Officer in the Geography and Spatial Sciences Program at the National Science Foundation, and was then Director for Environmental Programs at Johns Hopkins University, Advanced Academic Programs. In July 2016 she returned to NSF as a permanent Program Director in Geography and Spatial Sciences Program. Antoinette has served as a Regional Councilor for the American Association of Geographers, and also as Chair of Board of the Conference of Latin Americanist Geographers. She currently serves on the Council of the American Geographical Society.
Organized by the ACSP Executive Committee. The United States imprisons its residents at a higher rate than any other country in the world. In many neighborhoods, criminal justice agencies are the primary government actors interacting with the public, and spending on police and prisons is the largest public expenditure. The criminal justice system also displays some of the widest racial disparities of any U.S. government institution. Despite the significant role of the criminal justice and penal systems in shaping the built environment of cities and the lives of urban residents, as well as its significant contribution to continuing urban inequality, the penal system is often not a primary focus of urban planning research or education. The goal of this session is to create an opportunity for debate and critical reflection on the implications of incarceration for planning and to explore the possibilities for planning education in prisons and jails.

About the Presenters

Leah Meisterlin is an Assistant Professor at Columbia University's Graduate School of Architecture, Planning, and Preservation. Broadly, her research engages concurrent issues of spatial justice, informational ethics, and the effects of infrastructural networks on the construction of social and political space. Her current research explores the ways in which digital technologies are restructuring urban spatial politics and altering methods, both contemporary and historical, of urban research. She teaches the Studio in Architecture and Urban Planning at the Rikers Island Correction Facility in New York.

Justin Steil is an Assistant Professor of Law and Urban Planning at MIT. Broadly interested in social stratification and spatial dimensions of inequality, his research examines the intersection of civil rights, land use, and local government law. His recent scholarship has explored these themes in the context of immigration federalism, residential segregation, lending discrimination, environmental justice, and mass incarceration. Prior to academia, he clerked for judges on federal trial and appellate courts, worked as advocacy director for a non-profit fighting predatory lending practices, urban planner for an environmental justice organization focusing on brownfield redevelopment, program manager for a project bringing youth and prisoners into critical dialogues about justice, and trainer with a domestic violence crisis center training police in Ciudad Juárez in the support of survivors of sexual assault. He has taught in prisons and jails for more than 20 years.

Institutionalizing Community – University Engagement: Scaling Up Collaboration through Planning Leadership
Saturday: 3:30pm – 5:00pm
Room: Colorado A

Organized by the ACSP Executive Committee. Inspired by the growing relevance and impact of community–university engagement in the urban planning academy, this session will highlight next steps for further institutionalizing engagement in our programs, colleges, and universities. The session will draw on the insights of planning leaders who, through their own research and teaching, as well as administrative efforts, have worked to advocate for, demonstrate, and embed meaningful engagement in their institutions. The speakers will share their perspectives on scaling up individual engagement efforts within universities and communities. They will envision what our institutions might look like if engagement were integrated across our structures of research, education, and service, and will consider the nature of our relationships with and commitment to communities, stakeholders, and the broader public.

Community Center & Exhibits

- Thursday: 7:00am – 5:45pm - Enjoy a continental breakfast in the morning, learn about how to use the mobile app, and get to know the industry leaders exhibiting in the Community Center.
- Friday: 7:00am – 6:30pm - This all-day session begins with a continental breakfast, is open during the late-morning/early-afternoon to peruse book titles of interest, take a coffee break, and network with exhibitors. Friday afternoon begins at 1:30pm with the Poster Session & Exhibits Reception where you can network with exhibitors and peers, review more than 60 research posters, and even get a free professional head shot photo!
- Saturday: 7:00am – 6:30pm - On Saturday, enjoy a continental breakfast while networking with colleagues. Grab a cup of coffee while you peruse book titles and exhibits.

Special Session
GPEIG Roundtable: The New Urban Agenda & Global Planning Education
Thursday: 1:00pm – 2:30pm
Room: Colorado B

Hosted by the Global Planning Education Interest Group. The New Urban Agenda (NUA) was presented and adopted at the UN-HABITAT III Conference held in Quito, Ecuador in October 2016. The document sets a new global standards of achievement for sustainable urban development for the next twenty years. The need for meaningful urban interventions is emphasized in the document including the role of urban planning. The main idea of the roundtable is to discuss the following questions: What are the challenges and opportunities from the NUA to global planning education? How should global planning education respond to those challenges and opportunities? What are some new and emerging questions and conundrums from the NUA that global planning education confronts and that students need to be prepared to engage with? The session will begin with brief remarks of the NUA and the ACSP/GPEAN roles and then go round the room and hear from each on their thoughts on any of the questions outlined above.

About the Speakers

Bruce Stiftel is professor and chair of the School of City and Regional Planning at Georgia Tech. He represents the Global Planning Education Association Network (GPEAN) to UN-Habitat’s University Network Initiative. His research concerns collaborative governance of environmental/water policy, global movement of planning ideas, and international responses to urbanization.

Eugenie L. Birch holds the Lawrence C. Nusssdorf Chair in Urban Research at the University of Pennsylvania where she is Professor of City and Regional Planning, School of Design and the founding co-Director, Penn Institute for Urban Research. She is currently president, General Assembly of Partners (GAP), an engagement platform for the implementation of the UN’s New Urban Agenda and associated global agreements. Her research interests include global urbanization, planning history and urban revitalization.

Special Session
Content Connections: Reaching Practicing Planners
Thursday: 5:45pm – 6:45pm
Room: Colorado A

Join the conversation with editors from the American Planning Association's JAPA and Planning magazine, the editor of JPER, and a practicing planner to find ways to bridge the gap between academics and professionals. We'll ask for your ideas, and talk about which research topics can help advance the profession, how to get your research in front of planners, and how to translate it for a nonacademic audience.

Local Host Session

Millennials, Mountains, & Mobility: The Impacts on Housing in Colorado's Front Range
Friday: 8:30am – 10:00am
Room: Colorado B

Denver is the second-fastest growing city in the U.S. Millennials, retirees, marijuana capitalists, IT professionals, people priced out of the coasts, and others are flocking to the region for jobs, access to the mountains, a perceived lifestyle, and yes, legal marijuana. The build out of the light rail system has stimulated development and investment throughout the region. However, this growth is creating pressures across the housing market—one-afordable central neighborhoods are being gentrified by millennials; since 2014 rental rates have increased by 20% and home values by 45%; mobile home parks in formerly forgotten areas are now in TOD zones; and only three of the 50 metro suburbs are still considered affordable. Planners and policymakers are seeking to create and preserve affordable housing within Colorado’s uniquely restrictive policy landscape, which includes budget and tax restrictions, constitutional prohibitions against inclusionary zoning for renters and tenant protections, and three failed attempts for a statewide housing trust fund. A fourth housing trust fund is working its way through the legislature, organizations are fighting to save mobile home parks through tenant buyouts, dozens of towns are supporting ADUs; densities are increasing; the Denver TOD fund has been expanded to the region; and the housing finance authority has initiated rolling 4% tax credit applications. Yet, these measures are not enough to meet the demand, and densification, traffic and NIMBY concerns are generating pushback from many neighborhoods. What else can be done to ensure that people across the income spectrum can find a place to call home in Denver?

About the Speakers

Brad Weinig joined Enterprise Community Partners in June 2011. Enterprise is a national non-profit organization that concentrates on bringing affordable housing expertise and investment to low-income communities. In his role as the Program Director for Transit Oriented Development, Brad is focused on creative financing solutions to ensure affordable housing and community facilities are developed and preserved near public transportation. Prior to joining Enterprise, Brad spent five years with Citi Community Capital in San Francisco, where he underwrote over $600 million of loans to finance the development or acquisition/rehabilitation of low-income apartment communities nationwide. Brad is a LEED Green Associate and an active member of ULI Colorado’s Workforce Housing Council.

Deyanira Zavala oversees the implementation and execution of Mile High Connects workplan by creating and managing partnership opportunities. She focuses on MHC’s Business, Local Workforce, and Middle Skilled Jobs and MHC’s Affordable Fares priority areas, as well as MHC’s gentrification/anti-displacement efforts. Prior to joining Mile High Connects, Deyanira served as Program Coordinator at Rocky Mountain MicroFinance Institute, a Community creating mobility in people’s lives through entrepreneurs. Deyanira has also served as the Business Assistance Center Manager with Business and Community Lenders of Texas and Program Coordinator with NALCAB-National Association for Latino Community Asset Builders, where she facilitated a variety of projects in support of NALCAB member organizations, including resource development and capacity building activities. Deyanira holds a Master of Public Administration from the University of North Texas and a Bachelor of Arts in Criminology from the University of Texas at Arlington.

APA's New Research Agenda: Opportunities for Collaboration
Thursday: 10:15am – 11:45am
Room: Colorado C

APA conducts sponsored research through the three National Centers for Planning: Green Communities, Hazards Planning, and Planning and Community Health. APA recently developed a new organizational research agenda in which partnering with collegiate schools of planning was identified as a priority. David Rouse, FAICP, APA's Managing Director of Research and Advisory Services, will provide an overview of APA's current research programs, the new research agenda, and opportunities for collaboration linking academic research and practice.

About the Speaker

David Rouse is a Fellow of the American Institute of Certified Planners and registered landscape architect with over 30 years of experience in community planning and design. Since 2013 he has served as Managing Director of Research and Advisory Services for the American Planning Association in Washington, DC. In this capacity he leads APA’s applied research programs, including Planning Advisory Services and the three National Centers for Planning: Green Communities, Hazards Planning, and Planning and Community Health. David co-authored APA publications on green infrastructure and comprehensive planning and is managing APA’s Sustaining Places Initiative to integrate sustainability into local governmental comprehensive plans.

Local Host Roundtable: Planning for Pot
Friday: 10:15am – 11:45am
Room: Colorado B

Medical marijuana is now legal in 29 states while 8 states plus the District of Columbia have legalized marijuana use and sales for recreational purposes. Yet we know very little about the implications of this multi-billion dollar industry on urban economies, neighborhoods, and built and natural environments. Speakers in this local host session will address some of the most pressing questions facing urban planners attempting to accommodate this new and controversial land use. How does this burgeoning industry affect property values, industrial lease rates, housing prices, gentrification, and displacement of underserved residents? How do municipalities and environmental justice advocates ensure that nuisance uses are equitably distributed and environmental externalities are properly managed? How does dispensary and growhouse density affect personal and property crime? And what are the local and regional economic development factors associated with the industry, including its impact on tourism?

The panel will include researchers on marijuana planning, as well as representatives from state and local governments and non-profit organizations.

valued in excess of $400 million, BBCP’s holdings currently include over 385,000 square feet of industrial properties, a 7-story office building currently being redeveloped, a 240,000 SF ground up industrial development, a recently completed 238-unit transit oriented mixed use development, a $55M Public/Private Partnership on a mixed use development, a 13-acre development site in Denver’s RiNo District, a 37 acre transit oriented development in Denver’s largest office submarket, and ownership of Frost Creek – a 2,600-acre mountain resort community in the Vail Valley. Recent development experience includes The LAB, a 79,000 square foot new office development in Denver’s Central Platte Valley and the $60M Oxford Station multi-family project in the Denver suburb of Englewood, both of which were awarded NAIOP’s Innovative Project of the Year in 2015 and 2016 respectively. Prior to forming BBCP, Mr. Brue’s 18 years of experience in the real estate industry includes personally transacting over $1 billion in commercial real estate acquisitions and dispositions and overseeing 350 commercial real estate brokers.

- Andrew Howard | Lieutenant, Vice and Drug Control Bureau, Denver Police Department. Andrew Howard is the Lieutenant in charge of the Vice and Drug Control Bureau for the Denver Police Department. In his current assignment he supervises three Marijuana enforcement teams as well as an interdiction team and a vice team. In his 20 years as a police officer he has spent most of his time working and supervising undercover officers. Lt. Howard has spent over ten years in narcotics investigations and was the supervisor of the first narcotic team to focus completely on illegal Marijuana investigations.

- Kristi Kelly is the executive director of Marijuana Industry Group, Colorado’s oldest, largest and most diverse trade association for licensed marijuana businesses, where she also served as vice chair and a board member. She recently launched Root Strategies, a national consulting company focused on cannabis strategies and business services. Kristi was an owner, and remains an investor in a group of marijuana cultivation, manufacturing and dispensary business in the Denver area, where she served as COO until December 2015. She is a founding board member of the Fourth Corner Credit Union, the world’s first marijuana financial institution. She currently sits on the Governor’s Marijuana Education task force, Denver's Social Consumption Advisory Committee, the Colorado Task Force for Drunk and Impaired Driving, the Colorado Department of Health and Environment's Marijuana Occupational Health and Safety Workgroup, and Denver's Odor Advisory Workgroup, and has participated in numerous other appointments, workgroups, and rulemaking committees.

- Professor Sam Kamin joined the faculty at the Sturm College of Law at the University of Denver in 1999 and is currently the Vicente Sederberg Professor of Marijuana Law and Policy. Holding both a J.D. and a Ph.D. from the University of California at Berkeley as well as a BA, summa cum laude, from Amherst College. He has become one of the nation’s leading experts on the regulation of marijuana, and in 2012 he was appointed to Governor John Hickenlooper’s Task Force to Implement Amendment 64 and the ACLU of California’s blue ribbon panel to study marijuana legalization.

- Jill Jennings Golich is Deputy Director of Community Planning and Development Department at the City and County of Denver, where she serves as point person all issues related to regulation of the marijuana industry. Prior to this, she was the Director of Campus Planning for Denver’s Auraria Campus, where she updated the campus’s master plan and managed the creation of a companion strategic implementation plan, the development of new campus design guidelines, creation and installation of monument and pedestrian signage, the renovation of the campus’ library, installation of the campus’ first bike lane, oversaw the design review process for six new buildings, and led the effort to relocate a RTD light rail station. Jill has a bachelor’s degree from the University of Denver, and a Master’s in Public Administration from the University of Washington.

• Ashley Kilroy | Executive Director of Excise and Licensing, City and County of Denver. After serving for nearly three years as the Executive Director of Marijuana Policy in Denver, Ashley Kilroy was promoted in October 2016 by Mayor Michael B. Hancock to lead the city’s Department of Excise and Licenses. Excise and Licenses is the central business-licensing department for the City and County of Denver and includes the Office of Marijuana Policy. The department manages licensing for a broad range of businesses, including bars and restaurants, security guard companies, and marijuana stores and cultivation facilities. In this position, Kilroy maintains responsibility for the administration and implementation of marijuana policy for Denver. She coordinates the marijuana-related work of various city departments, commissions, boards, officers, agencies and employees, and serves as Denver’s liaison to local, state and federal elected officials, agencies, and other partners on marijuana issues. Kilroy and her team have developed a collaborative approach to marijuana management, facilitating engagement and coordinating the work of hundreds of city employees who are committed to the city’s successful implementation of a legal marijuana. Her work has helped position Denver at the forefront of cannabis regulation, enforcement and education worldwide, and the city continues to lead and innovate as the industry and its regulations evolve. Kilroy has served Denver in many capacities, including as the Deputy Manager of Safety where she provided managerial support, oversight, and discipline of the Denver Police, Sheriff and Fire departments. She has extensive experience as an attorney, mediator and investigator, practicing law for more than 20 years and specializing primarily in municipal employment law. Kilroy received her J.D. from Tulane University Law School in New Orleans, graduating with honors, and her B.A. from the University of Alabama. She has three daughters and lives in Denver with her husband, Jim.

• Margie Valdez | Chair, Denver Inter-Neighborhood Cooperation Zoning & Planning Committee. Margie Valdez, J.D. is the current Chair of Inter-Neighborhood Cooperation (INC), a non-profit coalition founded in 1975 and comprised of representatives from all of Denver’s registered neighborhood organizations (RNOs), city agencies, and others. Margie is a member of many civic organizations and committees include the Social Consumption Advisory Committee (to regulate public marijuana use), and Blueprint Denver. She is also an Executive Member of INC and Board Member of Capitol Hill United Neighbors Association. Previously, she served as Chief Counsel for the California School Employees Association and before that was in private practice as an attorney in California.

• Jeff Romine | Chief Economist | City and County of Denver. Jeff is the Chief Economist for the City and County of Denver, and works directly in Denver’s Office of Economic Development. He assists in setting the policy and program direction for community economic development programs for Denver. Jeff has been the lead staff in working with the Mayor and the OED Executive Director to attract, retain, and expand companies in Denver, including DaVita, TIAA, Panasonic Enterprise Solutions, Johns Manville, and Optiv (formerly Accuvant) and a number of fast growing technology businesses. He works on a number of initiatives and business development projects. He was the city staff lead on the establishment of the Denver, now Mile High, TOD Fund, the CGR Impact Fund, and other innovative financing tools. Previously under Mayor Hickenlooper and Mayor Vidal, he served as the Director of Business and Housing Services and led the Business Development team. In these roles, he directed the business attraction and development, affordable and workforce housing, and neighborhood development program activities of the integrated community economic development program. Prior to joining the City, Jeff was on the economic research faculty of the Leeds School of Business, at the University of Colorado at Boulder, the Chief Economist at the Maricopa Association of Governments (Phoenix metro) and the Denver Regional Council of Governments. He has taught undergraduate and graduate courses in micro- and macroeconomics, economic development, urban market analysis and public policy.
Special Session
Public Communication Strategies for Planning Academics
Friday: 1:30pm – 3:00pm
Room: Colorado G

Hosted by the ACSP Communications Committee. Interested in sharing your research with practitioners, connecting with media, and better communicating about your work for a public audience? Come hear from leading planning researchers about these topics and more. The speakers will share their insights on venues for sharing their research and expertise, engaging with social and traditional media, and framing planning research for broad audiences. In addition to sharing personal strategies and examples, the speakers will offer advice about integrating communication efforts with teaching and research expectations, developing relationships with writers and editors relevant to planning, and engaging colleagues around communication efforts. The session will offer ample opportunities for discussion about communication strategies, as well as ways that ACSP can support faculty and students in enhancing their communications skills.

Special Session
Examining Global Planning Education: An Open Conversation
Friday: 6:00pm – 7:30pm
Room: Mattie Silks

Hosted by the ACSP Global Planning Education Task Force. Global planning education in North America finds itself at a crossroads once again. Since the 1950s planning approaches to understanding international and global contexts have gone through several turning points. Early theories in comparative planning, influenced by modernization theory, assumed that Europe and the United States were to be emulated as the apogee of planning theory and practice.

Beginning in the 1960s, however, planning pedagogy and research began to emphasize the particularity of cities, and the need to root planning approaches in an understanding of societies, cultures, and the historical and contemporary role of economic and political structures operating at an international scale in shaping urban issues. The 1980s saw a turn towards an interest in issues of globalization and neoliberalization, and the challenges that these forces presented to cities across the globe. Today, we witness a dramatic turn inwards in national political discourse, as political leaders in the United States ratchet up discourses of American exceptionalism, and cast immigrants and other nations as threats to American security and prosperity.

What do these changes mean for global planning education? How do we educate our students to tackle the inward and nationalistic turn in political discourse? How do we train students to understand and reflect on the ways that the global intersects with local planning practice, whether in the US or in other contexts? What challenges and opportunities does the current political moment present to planning education more generally in its efforts to bring the global dimensions of local issues to the attention of current and future planning practitioners?

This session is hosted by the ACSP Global Planning Education Task Force, which has been tasked by ACSP with reviewing contemporary practices in global planning education and research. As part of its review, the Task Force plans to hold sessions at the 2017 and 2018 ACSP annual meetings in order to better understand the perspectives of a broad range planning academics, and to foster a continuing discussion about the agenda of the Task Force with the broader ACSP community. We hope to gain input from a range of stakeholders planning educators from programs that have significant course offerings in global and international planning and those that do not, and faculty who conduct research and teaching that is explicitly international and those who do not. While taking the above questions as a starting point, we intend for this session to be an open discussion that may touch on any number of issues of interest to attendees, including the role of global planning in curriculum and instruction, recruitment and engagement of international students, issues of accreditation, and others.

Special Session/Training Workshop
PAB - Assessing Assessments: The Role of Professionals
Saturday: 11:30am - 12:30pm
Room: Colorado A

Learning Objectives:

- Learn about the driver and fundamentals of student learning and outcomes assessment in higher education
- Understand the various ways planning programs are ensuring students have the skills required to work as planners
- Identify opportunities for professionals to work with local universities and planning faculty in student learning and outcomes assessment.

Student Learning and Outcomes Assessment are buzzwords flying around academia. Why should this matter to the profession? Explore the opportunities and challenges of engaging external stakeholders in outcomes assessment, and how feedback from practitioners is used to improve learning in the program.

Emerging Challenges for Planning & Collaborative Strategies to Prepare for Them
Thursday: 2:45pm - 4:00pm
Room: Colorado A

Hosted by the ACSP Committee on the Academy. This session follows issues raised at the 2017 ACSP Administrator’s Conference held in Reston, VA. Given the changing environment across the country marked by budgetary challenges for public universities, declining enrollment, changing demographics and an aging population, the planning academy faces several internal and external challenges. In this session, panelists will share some ideas that emerged from the Administrator’s conference that show the

Special Session
POCIG Roundtable
Saturday: 3:30pm – 5:00pm
Room: Nat Hill

Lewis Mumford, in his seminal work The City in History, describes a historical duality of cities - they serve simultaneously as a sanctuary and a stronghold. While strongholds often connote safety, critics argue that the city in fact can have carceral qualities to it - the stronghold may double as a prison cell. The recent visibility of urban policing, police-involved killings, and immigration raids has surfaced the disparity in experience around urban safety and security. While planning often wields police powers in a far more subtle manner, planning serves as another form of policing which is often experienced disparately by race, income, gender, and nativity.

The victory enjoyed by Trump reflects a conservative populism that sees punishment and a vigilant police force, as an unquestioning response to the perceived threat of people of color in inner cities. Containment and imprisonment, punishment - become the requirements per Trump's political base and their ideology. For example, the White House immigration policy is founded on a social construction that demonizes the "other."

Planning will need to respond to this conservative temperament that affects the poor and minorities as programs such as affordable housing and even the "Wall" becomes the focus of the Trump Administration. This roundtable hosted by the ACSP Planners of Color Interest Group calls into question the role of planning in policing urban space, at a moment when the Trump administration policy calls into question the right to sanctuary, particularly in urban spaces.

Training Workshop
Measuring and Assessing Student Learning Outcomes at the Program-Level
Friday: 3:15pm - 4:45pm
Room: Colorado G

Provided by the ACSP Governing Board. For over a decade, assessment of student learning has been a focus in higher education. Accreditors, like PAB, require that programs define, measure, and assess what and how much students learn throughout their education. In this hands-on interactive session, we will discuss various methods for measuring student learning. We will use measurement examples from specific planning programs as well as ideas brought forward by session participants. In addition, we will examine assessment approaches and the types of curricular feedback that can improve student learning in the future. Participants in this session should leave with examples and strategies for measuring and assessing levels of student learning in their programs and ways for documenting and enhancing that learning.

This session is designed for planning program administrators and faculty involved in student learning assessment.

About the Speaker

Cheryl Contant has over 30 years of experience in urban and regional planning education and university administration. She has served as a member of PAB and visited many programs on accreditation site visits. In the past four years, Cheryl has been assisting PAB with their site visitor training programs, with particular attention toward student learning outcome assessment. Most recently, she has been consulting with Morgan State University's School of Architecture and Planning in the development of program-level student learning outcomes and devising efficient and effective ways to measure and assess those desired outcomes. Cheryl is providing this session, with the support of ACSP, as professional development for program administrators and planning faculty.

Student Workshop - Publishing in Planning: Where and How?
Saturday: 8:00am – 9:30am
Room: Colorado B

Organized by the ACSP Student Governing Board Representatives. This workshop focuses on the decisions that planning researchers face in the publishing process. The format of the workshop will be largely interactive with a panel of faculty—some of whom are current/former editors—to share valuable tips and insights and answer questions.

Topics of discussion will include: journal selection, publishing expectations of doctoral students, editorial interaction and revision process, web presence of one’s publications, publishing a paper from the thesis/dissertation, and the merits of the various types of publication (e.g. peer-reviewed articles, technical reports, book chapters).

Dear Colleagues! I have been thinking about ways for ACSP old timers (like me) to get together at the ACSP Annual Conference. I suggested that the ACSP arrange an Emeriti Breakfast. I’m definitely not thinking of having a formal program or speaker(s), just providing a time and place for us to get together. Please email dick.klosterman@gmail.com if you’re interested in participating in this special breakfast at the Denver conference. There is no cost to attend. I’d also appreciate any other ideas you may have on ways for us to get together during the conference or communicate throughout the year. ~ Sincerely, Dick Klosterman
