

Perfect gift for a social worker?

Give the gift of NASW membership!

Dear Parents, Spouse, Friends, and Family Members,

As most of you all know, I am working hard to obtain my degree in social work and begin a fantastic career in a profession that I love.

You may be thinking about a good gift for me, so I'd like to drop this hint: Please consider paying for my first year's membership in the National Association of Social Workers.

NASW is the largest membership organization of professional social workers in the world. To assist me in my professional journey, NASW offers an array of services such as professional and ethical consultation, career support including resume review, and discounts on licensing exam prep courses, other workshops and conferences. NASW also advocates for social workers and the clients we serve—on the national and state level—for things like social work safety, loan forgiveness, and social justice.

Being a member will help me network with others in my field. My career is just starting, and I look forward to the guidance and support from the association and my fellow members. Social Work isn't easy, but it's important, and I need the right tools to do the job well.

So, consider buying me a membership. If you do it before my graduation date, it will only cost $57 – a discount of 60%-75% off regular dues. I can continue to receive reduced membership rates for up to three years after graduation.

With Great Thanks,

Your new Social Work Graduate
