James Madison University’s Summer Institute in Counseling

“Constructing Your Career: Groundwork And Growth”
Cosponsored by Virginia Counselors Association

The 14th Annual Summer Institute in Counseling at James Madison University invites school counselors, community counselors, and other mental health practitioners to join us. This year’s themes include:

Aspirational Ethics in Pragmatic Practice*
May 21, 1:00-3:00 p.m., Miller G031
A. Renee Staton, Ph.D. and Michele Kielty Briggs, Ph.D.

This 2-hour workshop is designed to help mental health and school counselors move beyond a basic, rule-oriented view of ethics to an aspirational and thoughtful approach leading to effective intervention. During the course, you will become more familiar with ethical expectations and practice, develop personally relevant rubrics to ethical intervention, and explore ethical decision-making models.

Renee Staton, Ph.D., is former president of the Virginia Counselors Association and Virginia Association for Counselor Education and Supervision. She is the lead author of “Becoming a Community Counselor: Personal and Professional Explorations.” Michele Kielty Briggs, Ph.D., coordinates the JMU School Counseling Program. She is a coauthor of “Becoming a Community Counselor” and “Thriving!”

School Counseling
June 21-22, and July 7, Miller G035
Michele Kielty Briggs, Ph.D.

This innovative graduate-credit course, which provides both online and on campus experiences, fulfills introductory curriculum requirements for school counseling licensure in many states. The training begins with a two-day workshop and ends with a one-day seminar that includes topical presentations. Between June 22 and July 7, participants will complete online assignments and engage in online discussions. At the completion of this course, you will be able to apply current theoretical frameworks to program implementation, identify needs of diverse students, determine best practices for addressing concerns, and apply ethical standards to school counseling practices.

Michele Kielty Briggs, Ph.D., coordinates the JMU School Counseling Program. She is a coauthor of “Becoming a Community Counselor” and “Thriving!”
Attachment, Caregiving, and The Circle of Security: A Developmental Model for Play Therapists
June 23, Miller G035
Jennifer Gilbert, Psy.D.

This one-day workshop provides an overview of attachment theory, The Circle of Security, children’s attachment patterns, caregiver behavior, and parent-child interactions in relationship to play therapy. At the end of this workshop, participants will have a deeper understanding of the Circle of Security in relation to children’s emotional, behavioral, and relationship development. Participants will also have an increased understanding of how the Circle of Security may help inform their direct clinical work with children and parents.

Jennifer Gilbert, Psy.D., is a graduate of JMU’s Combined-Integrated Doctoral Program. She is a Clinical Psychologist and Post-Doctoral Fellow at the Mary D. Ainsworth Child-Parent Attachment Clinic in Charlottesville.

Creative Arts in Counseling
June 28*, Miller G035
Teresa Haase, Ph.D.

This workshop is an experiential introduction to the use of various forms of creative arts in the counseling setting. You will learn how to integrate metaphors, poetry, drawing, guided imagery, and music into your work with clients. In the process, you will also experience the impact of these techniques. At the completion of this workshop, you will be able to understand how to use creative arts techniques in your sessions with clients, integrate creative techniques into your counseling, and consider ethical issues regarding the use of these techniques.

* This workshop may also be taken for one hour of graduate credit. To receive graduate credit participants must register for the appropriate PSYC 710 course and attend a second class period on June 29th.

Teresa Haase, Ph.D., received her doctorate in Counseling at George Washington University. She is an Assistant Professor of Counselor Education at Eastern Mennonite University.

Clinical Mental Health Counseling*
July 19-20, August 2, Johnston 204
A. Renee Staton, Ph.D.

This 3-credit hour course, which involves both online and on-campus experiences, fulfills professional identity curriculum requirements for the LPC license. The training begins with a two-day workshop and ends with a one-day seminar. Participants will also complete online assignments and engage in online discussions. At the completion of this course, you will be able to understand the professional identity of the mental health counselor, apply intentional interventions in mental health counseling practice, and address ethical and legal issues relevant for mental health counselors.

Renee Staton, Ph.D., is former president of the Virginia Counselors Association and Virginia Association for Counselor Education and Supervision. She is the lead author of “Becoming a Community Counselor: Personal and Professional Explorations.”

*This course is listed as PSYC 630 Community Counseling on e-campus. This is the same course.
Hypnosis and Relaxation Techniques
July 22-23, Johnston 204
Kent Massie, LPC

This workshop is an introduction to the use of relaxation and hypnotic techniques in clinical settings. At the completion of this workshop, you will be able to use the relaxation response to mediate emotional arousal, use guided imagery, and induce hypnosis in appropriate clinical settings.

Kent Massie is an LPC who is certified in clinical hypnosis by the American Society of Clinical Hypnosis. He is an adjunct faculty member at JMU and an approved consultant in clinical hypnosis by ASCH. He also has a private practice in Lexington.

Please note! All workshops provide at least two hours of training in ethical behavior and expectations for counselors.
